

Measure Would Create New Dairy Markets Division

Ohio House To Vote On Bill Covering State Milk Prices

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio House votes today on a controversial bill which would permit state milk price controls.

The measure would create a dairy markets division in the state Department of Agriculture. The division would have authority to invoke price controls at producer levels for the 15 per cent of Ohio milk producers not now covered by federal milk marketing orders.

Opponents of the measure—mostly city dwellers—declared the proposed state law would result in a retail milk price increase of three to five cents a quart.

The House Monday—as the Legislature started a three-week stretch drive toward adjournment—voted, 77-33, to ease eligibility of low income families to occupy metropolitan housing developments.

The bill approved by the House and sent to the Senate increases from $2,400 to $3,000 a year the maximum income a couple can receive and still be permitted to live in public housing projects.

Before approving the higher income limit, the House rejected proposals to set the income maximum at $2,500, to cut the allowance for minor children from $200 to $100 and to eliminate the $600 leeway above the maximum that determines where a family must move out.

The Senate, without debate, passed unanimously and sent to the House a bill backed by the administration of Gov. C. William O'Neill to provide quick reimbursement to cities from state funds for highway planning and right-of-way purchases. The measure is designed to allow cash-short cities to get a rapid turnover on their available money.

After a one-day delay, the Senate was due to vote today on a measure to grant a general increase in amounts candidates for office may spend in their campaigns.

The Senate also was scheduled to vote today on a bill to create an industrial development division in the State Commerce Department. The new division would include the present State Aviation Board and the present Development and Publicity Commission.

The House Monday passed and sent to the Senate bills to:

Help development of regional water and sewer districts by easing present restrictions on the issuance and sale of revenue bonds.

Permit emergency bond issues for school and land furnishings and provide property assessments for improvements—such as sewers—in new subdivisions where easements take the place of alleys.

Increase from $1 to $3 a day the credit for time spent in jail by hunting and fishing law violators.

Require garages and other dealers to obtain certificates of title from owners who junk cars.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill permitting school boards to buy insurance to protect school officials, teachers and employees from financial loss resulting from negligent acts.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill permitting apportionment of salaries of municipal court judges whose jurisdiction lies in two or more counties. The House was told the bill, if it becomes law, would affect the municipal courts in Bellevue and Fostoria.

The Senate received from Gov. O'Neill for confirmation his appointments of Robert D. Keim, Columbus, to the Ohio Underground Parking Commission and Robert W. Amos, editor of the Cambridge Daily Jeffersonian, to the Ohio Reclamation Board of Review.

The Senate Education Committee is expected to act tonight on a bill seeking to reimpose movie censorship in Ohio. State review and licensing of films to be shown in Ohio was abandoned more than two years ago after court rulings that the law was too vague in its definition of obscenity.

Veterans Guide

By Veterans Administration)
I have a permanent World War II GI insurance policy on the endowment plan. At the end of the endowment period, how will VA pay me the money?

A—You have a choice. You may receive the proceeds in a lump sum or in monthly installment which may range from 36 to 240 months.

Q—Would any compensable service-connected disability qualify a veteran for vocational rehabilitation training under Public Law 894?

A—No. The disability must be of such a nature that the veteran needs training to overcome his handicap.

Q—If I file an application for Korean GI training within three years from my discharge, would that be considered as my official entrance into training and meeting the deadline for starting training?

A—No. Filing of an application is not sufficient. You actually must be in training before your deadline of three years from discharge.

Q—Under the War Orphans Education program, do the monthly VA allowance checks go to the student or to his living parent?

A—If the student is under 21, the payments go to his living parent. If over 21, he may receive them himself.

Couple Wed 44 Years After First Proposal

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP)—Ben McAllister, a man who "never did approve of long engagements," has married Nina Duden—44 years after first proposing to her.

Nina, now 68, accepted Ben's first proposal back in 1913 at Downs, Kan. But they both had invalid relatives to support and kept postponing the date.

Nina worked as a schoolteacher during the long wait and Ben, now 72, came west and went into business. He now operates a lumber business at Woodland Hills.

The 4-year engagement ring didn't fare so well. She had to have the diamond reset three times because of worn-out bands.

Reading, Pa., Dog One Of World's Richest

READING, Pa. (AP)—Bobby, a 4-year-old mutt who has no conception of the meaning of pedigree and doesn't care, today is the richest dog in Reading, Pa., and possibly one of the richest in the world.

Bobby Monday was named principal, and practically sole beneficiary of the estate of his late mistress, Mrs. Ruth A. Maurer. The estate, filed for probate in the Berks County Court House, was estimated at $50,800.

All the money was left to care for the mongrel dog Mrs. Maurer picked up as a pup from the Humane Society.

Under terms of the will, Bobby will (1) have a practical nurse to look after him, (2) sleep in his own bed in the air-conditioned bedroom once occupied by his mistress, (3) have full run of Mrs. Maurer's three-room apartment and (4) be taken for a walk every morning and evening.

Mrs. Maurer died April 29. She was a widow. She lived quietly and nothing was available on her personal background.

CLEVELAND ATTORNEY DIES
CLEVELAND (AP)—O. D. Eshelman, 72, Cleveland attorney, collapsed and died Monday in a second floor hall of the Lakeside Avenue Court House. Death was attributed to a heart attack. He was a native of Ashland, Ohio. In the late 1930s Eshelman engaged in exposing the cemetery lot speculation racket here and carried several cases to successful conclusion in the Ohio Supreme Court.

TO QUESTION SUSPECT

CLEVELAND (AP)—Police said a 30-year-old Cleveland man would be brought here from Youngstown for questioning in the fatal stabbing April 14 of Willie Peterson, 35, of Cleveland. Officers said James Pruitt surrendered to FBI agents in Youngstown, where he had been working on a highway relocation project. The stabbing occurred at a birthday party in Pruitt's home, police said.

Move To Streamline County Government

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A move toward streamlining county government in Ohio will come up at the 20th annual meeting of the League of Women Voters of Ohio which opened here today.

Mrs. Fred Davis of Lima, third vice president of the League and its lobbyist in the Ohio Legislature, said she would urge the 250 delegates to get behind two streamlining measures which have been approved by the House of Representatives.

Mrs. Davis said the measures could strengthen county government and that she would ask the delegates to arouse interest in their own communities.

Last April 30, the House voted 112-24 for an amendment which would make it easier for counties to form a charter type of government. The amendment would preserve the veto powers of township governments in counties of under 500,000 population, but would enable counties of more than 500,000 population to have the same powers as municipalities.

The House also voted 83-37 for a bill which would revise the powers and functions of county commissioners and permit the hiring of county managers. Under it, county commissioners could make contracts with port authorities, townships and water and sewage districts.

The House defeated a proposed amendment to permit metropolitan federation of townships, counties and municipalities.

Girl Begins 18th Day Of Religious Fast

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Sixteen-year-old Evelyn Jenkins began today the 18th day of what she plans to be at least a 21-day religious fast.

The pretty brunette, who says she had never been a member of a church until she joined the Voice of Faith Temple last fall, began the fast for the "glory of God."

Her minister, the Rev. R. C. Cook, described the girl's appearance as "a little delicate."

Evelyn says at the end of three weeks "it will then be God's will whether I continue or not."

Evelyn spends each day reading the Bible, praying and meditating in a wooded area near her aunt's home, where she is now living.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

This is a story of loans from union treasuries — with interest, human interest. It's the story of Air Force personnel who are at home in the air but have no place to live on the ground over which they streak at 2,000 miles an hour as guardian angels.

Victor Riesel

These are the men who fly the giant bombers for the Strategic Air Command and the jets for the fighting wings. They're at jam-packed bases desperately short of decent living quarters for the Air Force personnel — because the Defense Department is short on cash for housing construction.

For months now the Air Force has been looking for scores of millions of dollars to finance this housing construction but money is tight and it could not be gotten from banks and other investors. Finally the Air Force got to two unions — and it now has at least 40 million dollars with which to build comfortable low-cost homes for the men expected to protect us.

AND IF SEN. John McClellan wants to see the result of honestly kept union funds, he need only drive out from Little Rock to the Strategic Air Command base outside that city. There the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, led by David Dubinsky, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, led by Gordon Freeman and Joe Keenan, got up 10 million dollars apiece to build air force personnel housing.

It has never been publicly reported that the Electrical Workers have put a total of 10 million more in similar home building at Fort Stewart, Ga., a base near Providence, R. I., and another in New Mexico. Add to this, another 10 million which Dubinsky's needle trades workers have just put into a similar project at the Stead jet fighter base outside Reno.

No slot machine gamble, all this. These investments are doubly insured and bring 4 per cent interest to the unions.

For neither union is this mortgage venture an experiment. Dubinsky has some 85 million dollars earmarked out of his union's funds, which total about a quarter of a billion dollars and increase at the rate of 25 million dollars a year in cash.

As for the Electrical Workers, they have not put a limit on the money they're investing to wipe out slums and make jobs.

THEY'RE IN IT for the duration at the rate of 18 million dollars annually in addition to the money they've lent the Air Force and the Pentagon for construction of homes near the military centers.

"We're not only interested in keeping construction going but in building homes in that price range which all working people can afford," Gordon Freeman and Joe Keenan have said.

For them this investment adventure began last May when some of the Electrical Workers Union leaders were in San Francisco. They talked to construction company people who told them they would have to go out of business and drop some 1,400 construction workers unless the tight money market eased. There was just no money to be borrowed.

The union men returned to Washington. After looking over the money market they decided to throw in money from the organization's pension and death benefit funds.

THEY FIGURED they could put up 1½ million dollars monthly for construction projects. This money would be safeguarded in government guaranteed mortgages, keep men at work and rip the rat-hole buildings out of major city slums.

So, today the Electrical Workers Union is lending money to contractors in San Francisco, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Kansas City, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland and New York City.

Someone should set this financial saga to lyrics and music, for this is truly a ballad for Americans. From the carefully counted dollars of the skilled craftsmen of the wondrous electrical world and the bent over figures of the needle trades shops come glistening apartments, playgrounds and parks as the older generation repays the land which gave it so much freedom.

Many Changes Due Among TV Programs

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — All three major networks are still working overtime shuffling and reshuffling their autumn schedules, trying this show and that for future size, and the fall fate of many a program still hangs in the balance. But, as matters stand this moment, there will be a lot of changes made.

As of this writing, the decision of Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz to stop grinding out new weekly adventures of I Love Lucy still stands, but CBS will rerun some of the popular shows in a new spot, Wednesdays.

Desi and Lucille would like to do a once-a-month, hourlong I Love Lucy but CBS hasn't yet found a sponsor willing to pick up the check for the film, price-tagged at $300,000 a shot.

There is still no solution concerning the television future of Jackie Gleason or his show, and the time has been filled with an hour film, Perry Mason, based on the Erle Stanley Gardner books. No one knows, either, what happens to Robert Montgomery or Sid Caesar, and now it looks as if Ray Bolger's Washington Square series may get the ax.

After years and years, Roy Rogers will no longer be riding and fightin' on Sunday evening. Private Secretary will make way for a new series called Slezak and Sons. Both Bengal Lancers and Sir Lancelot will permanently fold their tents.

Two for the Money will disappear in favor of New York Confidential, starring Lee Tracy. Pat Page will come into the old Wednesday night Arthur Godfrey spot.

NBC's early evening 15 minutes now holding Jonathan Winters, Xavier Cugat, Nat King Cole and Dinah Shore, will be dispersed. Only Dinah, with a big variety show modeled on her last season's hourlong variety shows, knows what the future holds. George Gobel is another involved in a shuffle: his old show dies, but he will do a 60-minute show, alternating with Eddie Fisher.

Danny Thomas will leave one network for another.

This And That

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know—if he didn't read his mail:

That a recent survey showed the average 1957 college graduate will get a starting salary of $400 a month, twice the amount at which the 1947 graduate began his career.

That vinegar, used by central European tribes 15,000 years ago, is also mentioned in the bible, and Hippocrates prescribed it as a medicine.

That Fresno, Calif., ministers now asking a $10 minimum fee to preach at the funeral of anyone not belonging to their church. . . . at that price it's a bargain, but we imagine most tourists will continue to prefer to spend their money at Las Vegas.

That someone has estimated 25 per cent of all the people who have inhabited the earth are still alive today. (How could anyone prove this?)

That all the champagne produced in France comes from a tiny region of only 25,000 acres.

That Picasso, when asked if he believed in miracles, replied, "Certainly. Rubens was a miracle. He painted 2,000 pictures and there are 4,000 in existence—isn't that a miracle?"

That only 3 out of every 10,000 persons in the United States is listed in "Who's Who." . . . and you have a better chance than your wife.

That a reader reports rats and mice won't stay in a house where there is television. . . . because a TV set causes vibrations you can't ever hear. . . . but which frighten rats. (We prefer to believe mice left our house because of the same TV vibrations that alarm us.)

That dull-colored cars are more likely to be involved in a collision than those that are brightly painted. (Yeah? Try and tell that to your insurance company.)

That matchbox collectors call themselves phillumenists . . . milk bottle top collectors are lacphillists . . . people who hoard bus, train and airplane tickets are teseraphilists . . . and people who collect taxes are called public servants.

That if you need ice during a long auto trip an easy way to provide it is to freeze a milk carton full of water in your refrigerator before setting out.

That the odds are 100-to-1 you don't know why Arizona is sometimes known as "The Valentine State." (It was admitted to the union on Feb. 14, 1912.)

That some painters advise painting your kitchen yellow this summer because flies can't stand that color. (Warning: The opinions expressed by painters in this column do not necessarily coincide with those of the author.)

That it was Ed Howe, the "Sage of Potato Hill," who observed, "No man would listen to you talk if he didn't know it was his turn next."

Down The College Drain

Scratch any educational forecaster and you'll get a prediction that the country's colleges tomorrow will be bulging to the doors.

The schools are loaded right now.

But one thing we don't hear much about is that more than 50 per cent of the students who enroll in our colleges quit school sooner or later without getting a diploma. A high percentage of the drop-outs are freshmen.

A new book by Agatha Townsend, "College Freshmen Speak Out," approaches the problem from the students' viewpoint.

Some of the difficulties they list ought to lend themselves easily to remedy.

A good many colleges aren't careful enough in detailing what they have to offer, what their atmosphere is like, and so on. And thousands of students don't try hard enough to find the place that fits their needs.

Above and beyond these things, however, is the astonishing fact that countless students are poorly prepared for college work.

They themselves acknowledge that too often they haven't mastered the simplest skills: how to read, use a library, write creditably, and organize ideas into useful patterns.

They blame the high schools which they insist don't drill these lessons home. Evidently they feel, too, that they don't get enough chance to develop the initiative required to meet heavier college demands.

More than a few educators seem to share the conviction that high school work frequently is poor preparation for college in America. And this not only because study skills aren't drummed into students but because some basic subjects like geography and history get slack treatment.

No matter whether he wants to be a philosopher or a chemist or an advertising man, the student needs to be able to hang things on the frame of history and to know the world's map and what it means in terms of people and their ways of life.

Yet not many experts in education place all the blame on inadequate earlier schooling. They also blame the students themselves, and their parents, for the lack of good study discipline and failure to get a good grounding in the fundamental subjects.

A 50 per cent college drop-out rate is pretty strong evidence that something is seriously amiss in our educational life.

Apparently we not only need new buildings to fit tomorrow's students, but students to fit the buildings and what goes on inside.

One Boss And Another

Aside from the trouble its officers are having is a rebuff to the Teamster Union by the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled Monday that National Labor Relations Board must deal with complaints of unfair practices against labor unions the same way it deals with complaints against other employers.

In an incident of complaints filed with NLRB against the Teamsters Union by Office Employees International Union Local No. 11 of Portland, the board had ruled it lacked authority to act. This coincided with the Teamsters point of view. The complaining union had said an NLRB examiner found the Teamsters to be in violation of every fair labor practice in the Taft-Hartley Act.

Although the Supreme Court made no finding on the charge of unfair practices, it has pinned down solidly the responsibility of labor unions as employers. They are no different from other employers. The Supreme Court makes no distinction. Employees who work for unions cannot be expected to distinguish between one boss and another in the matter of protection under federal law.

Unions, themselves, rejected that idea in the early days of the original Wagner Act.

No Time To Mark

A report on one of the most important ideas being tested in higher education — the elimination of the last two years of high school for outstanding students — has been made by the Fund for Advancement of Education, a Ford Foundation project.

There is agreement among the 2 colleges which cooperated in the test that the idea is sound. Boys and girls of exceptional ability can go from the sophomore year of high school to the freshman year of college without undue stress. It is one way to keep high-mentality students from marking time in an era which has no time to mark for its ablest brains. Since most of them will go to graduate school after college, the time saved between high school and college makes it possible for them to start making their own way before they are halfway to their 30th birthdays.

The purpose of the experiment conducted by the Fund for Advancement of Education, beginning in 1951, was to learn what would happen when students of exceptional ability were taken away from their chronological peers and placed among their intellectual peers. Nothing happened of any great consequence, except that most of the students tested continued to show intellectual superiority, regardless of age.

His Contribution

By DAVID LAWRENCE

McCarthy May Go Down In History as Martyr

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy is gone — but he has left behind a legacy of controversial issues that it may take years to resolve.

David Lawrence was a relentless fighter for what he believed to be right. He might have won the "censure" battle in the Senate in 1954 if, while under severe strain during the proceedings, he had not tactlessly antagonized many senators who were disposed to be objective about the issue.

The Senate was dealing with a delicate question — the right of free speech in Congress uninhibited by threats of punishment. Never in the history of the Senate had any member been "censored" for expressing his opinions, no matter how distasteful or unpopular they were.

The Senate finally abandoned the word "censure," with its historical connotation of punishment and substituted the milder word "condemn." Even so, the Senate resolution set a bad precedent of interference with free speech. For to condemn a man because of the opinions he expresses is what has been called "McCarthyism at its worst."

If ever a man was hounded to death because of his beliefs, it was Sen. McCarthy.

His health was impaired by the strain and tension arising out of the tactics and methods of his enemies. They ganged up on him from the days when they saw he was making headway with his crusade against communism in government.

THE COMMUNIST newspaper, "The Daily Worker," in New York was the first to give persistent publicity to the word "McCarthyism."

There was no limit to the innuendoes, baseless charges and whispering campaigns directed against Sen. McCarthy in an effort to discredit him. It was assumed by many of his opponents that, if McCarthy the man were discredited, the whole drive against Communists in the government would collapse.

Some strange chapters remain yet to be fully explained. One is the vicious spread of rumors that Sen. McCarthy had cheated on his federal income tax returns, though it turned out in the end that the Treasury Department owed him money and sent him a refund check for overpayment of his taxes.

Yet, before the Internal Revenue Bureau could complete its investigation, the campaign to maneuver McCarthy into a public hearing in which his enemies would have a chance to impugn his honesty was participated in by a Senate subcommittee consisting mostly of his opponents.

Although McCarthy was reelected senator by the people of Wisconsin in November, 1952, after his refusal to testify before the same committee, his opponents in 1954 nevertheless used that refusal — which had occurred in a previous term of office — as a basis for the start of "censure" proceedings.

Another episode, still unexplained, is the case of Paul H. Hughes, who posed as a member of McCarthy's staff and, over a period of several months, collected big sums of money from various sources high up among the so-called "liberals" with the promise of "revelations" derogatory to McCarthy personally.

AT ANY MOMENT during that long period, the fact that Hughes was not an employee of any congressional committee could have been established through the careful inquiries of an alert newspaper man.

The record in the perjury case that followed in the courts reveals a paradoxical example of "McCarthyism" in reverse. So is the current persecution of Scott McLeod, once a close friend of McCarthy and a stalwart fighter against communism in the government, who has been nominated by President Eisenhower to be ambassador to Ireland.

Vice President Nixon has also been a victim of the same kind of tactics by the so-called "liberals," who in 1952 spread false accusations about him.

Sen. McCarthy made many errors in judgment, sometimes lost his temper and at times ignored the counsel of his best friends. He didn't, however, mind fair criticisms.

This correspondent in his dispatches at the time expressed strong disapproval of the Wisconsin senator's attacks on Gen. Marshall and of the ill-mannered treatment given Gen. Zwicker at a committee hearing and denounced Sen. McCarthy's break with President Eisenhower as a grave blunder.

Looking back at all aspects of the tragic controversy, however, this writer remains convinced that it was most important to the cause of true liberalism in America to defend the right of a senator to express himself freely rather than to see him deprived of that privilege by the coercive action of those who disagreed with his views.

Principle is too often disregarded under the stress of emotion, inside as well as outside of legislative bodies.

SEN. MCCARTHY'S great contribution, of course, was to dramatize the necessity for a vigorous battle against Communist infiltration.

The record shows a sad neglect by the State Department in the 1940's of the intrigue carried on there. This was repeatedly called to the department's attention in confidential communications from Senate committees and in FBI reports long before the Wisconsin senator in 1950 brought the fight out into the open.

Incidentally, even after death, they still vilify McCarthy in Great Britain.

Had there been in the British Parliament only a fraction of the alertness which was generated by the Wisconsin senator's crusade here, the treason of Burgess and MacLean and the transmission of atomic secrets to the Soviets by Klaus Fuchs — who had been "cleared" for work in an American laboratory by British officials — might never have occurred. Indeed, the whole history of the "cold war," with its costly budgets, might then have been different.

Time, of course, changes many things. It sometimes makes martyrs out of men who were pilloried during their lifetime. The elder Robert La Follette, senator from Wisconsin, also refused to testify before a Senate committee.

He was being investigated because of public speeches — regarded by many people as traitorous — which he made while America was engaged in World War I.

THE TWO HOUSES of the Wisconsin Legislature — controlled by his own party — formally called on the United States Senate to expel him. But the Senate took no action. Only last week, the elder La Follette was selected by a Senate committee to be one of the five in the Senate's "Hall of Fame."

The lapse of time seems to furnish a different perspective on the record of Wisconsin senators and maybe, many years hence, history will repeat itself.

Radio Moscow's "tribute" to Sen. McCarthy is to denounce him as responsible for "the preparation of new military ventures by the United States."

To have helped alert America to the menace of communism is to have earned Moscow's hatred — which is the most eloquent epitaph that could be written for Joe McCarthy.

Specialists Lacking

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (U)—Latest entry in the brains derby to be run in the coming commencement weeks is the mechanical brains industry's search for tomorrow's specialists.

Industrial scouts seek to lure the graduate into numerous fields from engineering to salesmanship. Emphasis first was put on the technical skills. Later numerous organizations began recruiting for strictly white collar jobs.

Fast growing use of electronic computers and punched card equipment today is posing a new problem: Where to find the specialist to run the machines of tomorrow?

The number in this new field at the supervisory level alone has grown from 10,000 in 1947 to 35,000 today. The National Machine Accountants Assn. says that at the present growth rate more than 60,000 will be needed by 1960.

But since the annual rate of new installations of mechanical brains is also growing, industry may need far more than 60,000 technicians to feed data in and out of the computers.

Because of the mushrooming demand for trained personnel, the association is sponsoring courses in machine accounting, programming, integrated data processing and related subjects in scores of cities.

Machine accounting is studied in such educational institutions as New York University, the University of Chicago, University of Minnesota and Rochester Business Institute. In St. Paul and San Diego there are vocational school courses in handling the giant brains.

D. L. Gerigthy, president of the association, and machine accounting manager for Aeroquip Corp., Jackson, Mich., says that "to be happy in the field, one must have inquisitiveness and ability to visualize."

In their recruiting and training for the growing field, the machine accountants are both competing with and cooperating with drives by others in the accounting field to gain recruits.

The American Institute of Accountants, uses charts, booklets and films to interest both teachers and students in high schools and colleges in public accounting as a career.

Private accounting has similar campaigns. The controllers Institute of America spreads the doctrine to students, counselors, faculty heads in collegiate schools of business.

An Oasis

Key Men To Quit Soon?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (U)—President Eisenhower's Cabinet isn't very old—in average age—but some of his key men are away up there and, like Eisenhower, will be over 70 if they stick around to the end of his administration in 1961.

Eisenhower himself is 66. Three Cabinet members are older: Secretary of State Dulles, 69; Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, 67; and Secretary of Defense Wilson, also 66 but three months older than the President.

Average age of the 10 Cabinet members: 59. Five of them are over 60, five under. If the 10 stay around until 1961, all but two will then be over 60, with an average of 63½. Three — Dulles, Humphrey, Wilson—will be over 70.

But Humphrey and Wilson are rumored just about ready to call it quits and go back to civilian life. Dulles' liking for his job seems undiminished, although he was operated on for an intestinal cancer six months ago.

The departure of these three would enable Eisenhower to bring younger men into his Cabinet. But this wouldn't mean a great deal in the sense that younger men would be running things for the Republicans as Eisenhower's term ends.

Not one of those now in the Cabinet has been seriously mentioned as a likely candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1960. Vice President Nixon seems to have the inside track on that.

And if he won the election he almost certainly—in the tradition of presidents—would pick his own Cabinet.

Except for Dulles, Humphrey and Wilson, only two other Cabinet members are over 60. They are Secretary of Commerce Weeks, 63, and Marion B. Folsom, secretary of health, education and welfare, also 63.

All the rest are under 60: Postmaster General Summerfield, 58; Secretary of Agriculture Benson, 57; Secretary of Labor Mitchell, 56; Atty. Gen. Brownell, 53; and Secretary of the Interior Seaton, 47.

Humphrey has not denied reports that he intends to get out in the near future. Nor has Wilson.

Both men put in a lot of time working on the budget. Eisenhower asked Congress to approve for next year. Wilson's interest in it, of course, was in getting Congress to vote the money he thinks the Defense Department needs.

Humphrey has an even wider interest: getting money for his own Treasury Department and for the government in general since, as the government's chief money man, the amount of money spent is of primary concern to him.

Both Humphrey and Wilson may leave after Congress finishes voting the money bills, which won't be until near quitting time for the lawmakers, perhaps next July.

Robert B. Anderson, former deputy secretary of defense, has been reported a good bet to become Treasury Secretary if Humphrey goes.

Donald A. Quarles, former secretary of the Air Force and now deputy secretary of defense, is said to be the likely successor to Wilson.

But if either Humphrey or Wilson departs it will almost surely be under his own steam and without any nudging from Eisenhower.

If Dulles quit, his logical successor would be Christian A. Herter, former governor of Massachusetts and now undersecretary of state.

TV Teaching

By TRUMAN TWILL

In the only speech I intend to make for several years, because it is a long time between my weak moments, one of the straws grabbed at by the drowning orator was the idea that electronics would revolutionize education.

What I had in mind — although I suspect it did not register on the listeners — was closed-circuit television. This would enable a top-notch teacher to reach students in many scattered places simultaneously. It would enable teachers, themselves, to be briefed simultaneously.

Added to films, recordings and radio, the impact of closed-circuit television could become the most tremendous means of dissemination of knowledge since the invention of movable type, which made books possible.

Books were, and still are, the basis of all education, because they make it possible for the knowledge within them to be preserved assimilated simultaneously wherever human beings are able to read. To them is going to be added another means of doing the same thing. Or rather, closed-circuit TV, itself, is going to be added to all other means of dissemination of information — books, films, recordings and the word spoken by the classroom teacher.

This will have no effect on the quantitative teacher shortage. But it will have a profound effect on the qualitative shortage. There will have to be as many classroom teachers in ratio to pupils as ever, but beginning in high school and continuing through college and graduate school the exceptional teachers' influence can be multiplied a thousandfold.

This will be no more radical or revolutionary than the multiplication of teaching by books, after movable type was invented. Yet for the commonest of all reasons, which is reluctance to adopt anything new, it will be resisted. The resisters already are on the job; they are talking about what will happen if the human element is taken out of education.

Goodness gracious, Gertrude, that is not what is being contemplated. There will be plenty of work for everybody. But it just happens that some people are better at teaching than others and that there is no law against giving as many pupils as possible the benefit of the best teachers.

It will still take all the skills of all the men and women who want to be teachers to bring out the potentialities of students' minds. In fact, the net effect of adding the new technique would be to make teaching more attractive by showing more people how a competent teacher does the job.

Historically, the professional teacher is not much older than the T-formation quarterback in scholastic circles. Standards of teaching are still so low in some places that the teachers should go back to school and become students.

What could be wrong with the idea of using the best teachers that can be found to give pupils the best presentations the public's education money can buy?

Inspired Paintings

Charles Burchfield, a Salem native and famed American painter, reflects in his paintings a religious feeling in the evidence of God's love in man and nature.

An account of Burchfield's adaptation of things religious to his paintings was revealed in the May issue of The Lutheran Magazine in which Burchfield says that not only does he paint from a religious aspect, but he is active in church work.

Burchfield, who spent his childhood and youth in Salem, worked here until 1921 when he moved to Buffalo, N.Y. Mr. and Mrs. Burchfield now live in a suburban area near Buffalo.

Once Over

Cinderella By Ballet

This must be Cinderella Year on the airwaves . . . It was done again a few nights ago, this time by ballet dancers.

Artistically it was a thing of beauty and portrayed the deathless fairy tale with grace and charm . . . But this was of necessity the jumpiest of all Cinderella routines and Cinderella certainly had to be "on her toes" to escape the life of drudgery and win the Prince. (She kept him up in the air much of the time.)

WE HEARD a Broadway character, upon whom the ballet art is always lost, come through with this critique:

"The slogan should of been 'Nobody Walks!' . . . When I wanna see things done up in the air I go to a bird store . . . This Cinderella was a poor little girl who could always beat her stepsisters in the high jumps.

"They was two ugly dames who went to dancing schools and made her stay home and keep flat on her feet. A prince who was rich but lacked pants in his wardrobe threw a big party in his palace which was called Bouncy Castle. It must of been a Leap Year affair.

"CINDY HAD to stick to the split-level bungalow and not lose a pound through violent exercise. A fairy godmother whose legs will do until a shapelier godmother comes along appeared and made the fairy godmother of the bedtime story look like a bush.

"She scratched the white mice as soon as she found they could not take hurdles and used nothing but a pumpkin. It should of been a tennis ball.

"The coach wasn't much but it got Cindy to the ball without once leaving the ground.

"The prince took one look and leaped at conclusions. He was a specialist at leaping. Anybody detected with either foot on the floor was thrown out but it was a wonderful ball with no Rock 'n' Roll touches.

"At midnight Cindy had to take a powder and took it in midair.

"THE PRINCE found a slipper and traced her to her cottage which must have been at Spring Lake just north of Lovers' Leap. He won in a romp. They must of been married by Roy Bolger with Willie Hoppe as best man, with music by the Civil Aeronautics Commission. "I'll lay you ten to one they honeymooned at Hopscotch Heights.

"The production was by Producers Toe-Case."

THE PAPER of a notorious racketeer, whose parole is under inquiry, included slips indicating that he was a horse-player with a yen for long shots . . . None of his choices had won in a year or more but on the day he was sent back to the hoosegow one of the skinnners he had been playing "Air Page" won.

An Air Force officer who has been in the service 29 years, and is still in uniform, got an order from his draft board to report for a physical . . . This is one case where the reply, "I'm too busy," would seem acceptable.

Sid Caesar of all TV comedians, comes up with the most original ideas week after week and one of the funniest of all time was his recent burlesque of the Mike Wallace candid interview hour . . . This one, with Caesar suffering and sweating at personal questions, was a classic.

A horse called "Dry Vermouth" is noticed in the daily entries and is well played by the martini set.

Hundreds of honey bees got loose in a post office and raised havoc the other day . . . Since Postmaster General Summerfield is in the auto business, we assume they were F. O. Bees, Detroit.

We just heard of a man who applied for a loan so he could hire auditors to see how far he was behind in debt payments.

Contest For Farm Youths

Ohio 4-H Club members and other youth interested in raising and marketing vegetable crops may compete for national honors in a contest sponsored by the National Junior Vegetable Growers association.

E. L. Drollinger, state contest chairman and Ohio State University extension horticulturist, says the association's contest this year offers Ohio boys and girls an opportunity to seek top awards in several classifications of production and marketing, demonstrations involving vegetable and fruit crops, and judging, grading and identification.

A National Achievement award of $100 will go to the individual selected on the basis of the most outstanding project report from all sections of the contest, plus character, citizenship and interest in horticultural work.

Last year an Ohio youth, Gary Bishop of Mt. Blanchard, was a national winner in the canning crops section of the contest.

Boys and girls interested in the contest may obtain additional information about it from their county Agricultural Extension offices.

Good tomato cultural practices pay off consistently in higher yields and bigger profits.

Ohio State University extension horticulturists draw this conclusion from a 10-year summary of 1610 field records of Ohio Top Ten Tomato Club members. Club membership consists of growers whose yields are in the top 10 per cent of those contracting with processors who participate in the Top Ten Tomato Club project.

The horticulturists list six cultural practices which "stood out" in the records.

Growers producing high yields selected fields that were well-drained.

Nearly 90 per cent of the growers used a sod crop some place in their 3-year rotation. Fifty-two out of 147 growers in the 1956 club had 2 years of sod immediately ahead of the tomatoes.

Growers are using more commercial fertilizers than ever before. In 1947 the average application was approximately 500 pounds to the acre of 3-12-12 or its equivalent. Last year growers used an average of 900 pounds to the acre.

The use of starter fertilizer in transplanter water was almost universal.

Eighty-two out of 147 growers in the club last year had their soil tested.

Most growers followed a disease and insect control program. Last year 141 of the club members used some disease control measures. Ground spraying was most popular. The average number of applications was slightly more than 5 per season.

The average yield of tomatoes for processing in Ohio has nearly doubled in the last 10 years. In the 3-year period, 1954-56, the average yield was 11.8 tons per acre, compared with 6.4 tons in the 1943-46 period. Ohio's processing tomato acreage last year was 18,000 acres. A slight increase in acreage is expected this year.

Guarding Your Health

By DR. EDWIN P. JORDAN

Questions of Mothers

Several questions raised by mothers show clearly that medicine does not have all the answers.

Mrs. N., for example, says that her daughter had German measles the first month of her pregnancy and that she was greatly frightened by what the doctors told her might happen to her daughter's baby.

However, the baby was born and seems to be all right. She does wonder, however, why more people do not know more about this subject, if it is really as dangerous as she has been told.

What we do know is not nearly enough. There are strong reasons for believing that if a prospective mother acquires German measles during the first three months of pregnancy there is an increased chance that her child will be born with some congenital defect.

But it does not always happen. However, it is advisable, in the light of our present knowledge, for pregnant women, particularly during the first three months, to avoid exposure as far as possible to contagious diseases, particularly German measles.

Another mother writes that her 10-month old girl has milk in one breast which comes forth upon pressure. She is naturally somewhat concerned and wants to know whether anything should be done about this or whether it will probably disappear.

In all probability the presence of a small amount of milky secretion in the breast of an otherwise normal baby girl of this age is not significant. This type of milk secretion in infancy is probably the result of stimulation of the breast hormones from the mother before the child was born. In all likelihood, treatment is not only unnecessary, but might do harm. The breasts should not be irritated by tight clothing or manipulation.

Counsellor John Proudfoot accompanied the group. The Junior group will attend a rally at Canton Sunday along with Rev. Donald McGarragh.

John Proudfoot concluded for the season his children's Wednesday Night Club at Middle Sandy Presbyterian Church.

This is a community project which he started two years ago. It was started primarily as a suitable place for children, eight years up to go to play. An average of approximately 20 children attended each evening.

Leetonia Council Oks Service Cutback

LEETONIA — A cutback in community services, recommended by the village finance committee, has been approved by Council.

Michael P. Burick, village clerk, said only one-fourth of the money appropriated for village use in 1957 has been received and a majority of the departments are operating "in the red."

Richard Kleinecht, street commissioner, has been instructed to keep a daily time card for himself and street workers, showing assignment and actual work time spent on each assignment. He will report the time records at each Council meeting.

The village also will not clean streets each day during the annual street fair; although a truck and driver will be furnished, provided the fair committee pays for it.

Roy Waddell, cemetery caretaker, has been asked to submit a daily log for his men. Waddell was also asked to assist the street commissioner during the winter months, since "Council" feels there is not enough work to keep the cemetery caretaker busy during winter months.

Extra police will not be furnished at football games nor during the street fair, although if extra police are needed they may be paid by the school or fair committee. Also, village police are being asked to cut down on the amount of gasoline used in day-time cruising.

Other items on the list include: the requirement of persons using village telephones to make a record of long distance calls, and a survey by council of village street lights to ascertain when lights will be turned off.

Mrs. Jessie Nicolette is chairman of the council finance committee.

The Social Democrats, headed by Saragat, had been threatening to quit for some time so they could reunite with the bigger left-wing Socialist party and campaign under one banner in future elections.

It seemed unlikely, however, that Saragat would press for a general election soon. Observers say the two Socialist parties have a lot to do before they can patch up their 10-year rift and enter elections as a unified group.

Former Senator Named American Mother Of 1957

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Hazel Hempel Abel of Lincoln, Neb., 68-year-old former U. S. senator and construction company president, was named American Mother of 1957 today.

The announcement was made by Mrs. Daniel A. Poling, president of the American Mothers Committee, Inc., at the opening of the group's annual mother's conference.

Mrs. Abel is a widow with five children—four daughters and one son. She has six grandsons.

Mothers of the year from every state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico competed for the national title. A committee jury chose the winner.

"Hazel Abel's work embraces many fields—church and religious organizations, education, civic and welfare groups, and above them all stands out her work with youth," said the announcement.

"She has been awakening thousands everywhere to all the known causes of juvenile delinquency, and has been stimulating communities to study and put into effect modern ways of prevention. In her own state she is responsible for new interests in a state-wide juvenile probation system, improved courts for children and recodification of Nebraska's children's laws."

Mrs. Abel was born in Plattsmouth, Neb., and has lived in that state all her life. She met her late husband, George Abel, when the two were students at the University of Nebraska.

After graduation he started a construction company with $100 in savings. The business grew to a large firm.

When Abel died in 1937, his wife took over as company president. She ran the business for 15 years. Then she turned it over to her only son.

Mrs. Abel was elected to a short term in the U. S. Senate following the death of Sen. Dwight Griswold.

Next Friday she will be honored as the American Mother of 1957 at the annual awards luncheon of the mothers committee at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Young Cleveland Woman Strangled

CLEVELAND (AP)—The body of a young woman was found Monday night stuffed in a laundry tub in the basement of her home here.

Homicide detectives Ray McInni and Robert Shottke said the woman, Mrs. Ernestine Johnson, 22, apparently had been strangled.

Around her neck was the belt of her dress and a piece of clothesline. The left side of her face had been scaled by hot water in the tub.

The detectives said Mrs. Johnson was fully clothed except for one sock and her shoes. There were no signs of a struggle, they added, except for two buttons torn from her dress, which were found on the living room floor.

The body was found by the woman's husband, Jack Johnson Jr., 23, who said he became alarmed when his wife was not home by 10:30 p. m. and started a search.

Mrs. Johnson was Cleveland's fourth homicide in three days. Two men, Richard Mills, 35, and Willie Smith, 33, were killed in a shooting and stabbing brawl in an East Side bar Saturday night and Theodore Glen Patterson, 52, was slain Sunday night in an argument over a dollar.

Dr. Alexander Spaeth Files For New Trial

CLEVELAND (AP)—A new trial is being sought by Dr. Alexander V. Spaeth, Cleveland skin specialist who was convicted of perjury by a federal court jury in Youngstown last week.

The 55-year-old dermatologist said in a motion filed here Monday that his former secretary, Mrs. Estelle Bulkley, "offered testimony which was false" and added that he had evidence "to impeach and discredit" her story.

Dr. Spaeth, accused of putting up a phony alibi for a bank robber, was convicted twice previously on the perjury charge but the sentences were set aside and new trials ordered because of procedural errors found by the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Vote Of Confidence
The Teamsters' Beck, despite his difficulties, has received a new vote of confidence from his union's board. The group, on motion of Union Vice President James R. Hoffa of Detroit, unanimously expressed confidence in Beck Monday.

"At no time has there been any discussion about the general president (Beck) resigning or any request before this board that he resign, and the board goes on record as cooperating and supporting the general president as it has in the past," a resolution said.

The probe of Beck's activities—and those of the Teamsters—by the AFL-CIO grew out of Beck's March appearance before the Senate committee.

At that time he invoked the Fifth Amendment 117 times in refusing to tell about his use of $300,000 to $400,000 in union funds. He has publicly acknowledged using that amount.

Hiss Says Hysteria, Faked Evidence Sent Him To Prison

NEW YORK (AP)—Alger Hiss in a book out today says that political pressure, public hysteria, faked evidence and false testimony sent him to prison for 3½ years.

The former State Department official, convicted of perjury in denying he gave confidential documents to ex-spy courier Whittaker Chambers, insists in the book that he was innocent, as he did throughout his two trials.

The 419-page book, "In the Court of Public Opinion," was published by Alfred A. Knopf, Inc. Hiss was released from prison in 1954. He, his wife and son have since lived quietly in New York.

He charges that Chambers' accusations in the book that testimony of ex-Communist Chambers, Chamber's wife and other government witnesses was at variance with documentary evidence.

His book includes numerous reproductions of such evidence introduced at his trials, the first of which ended in a hung jury.

Hiss, in giving his account of the affair, maintains that the typewriter on which copies of State Department documents were alleged to have been written was a planted fake.

He charges that Chambers' accusations of espionage against him were the result of pressure by the 1948 House Committee on

54th Columbiana County Track Meet Set Here Friday

160 Athletes Will Compete

At Least 2 Records To Be In Jeopardy

By MARK MILLER

At least two records will be in jeopardy Friday when Salem's Quakers play host to the 54th annual Columbiana County track meet at Reilly Stadium.

About 160 boys are expected to participate from eight schools in the 14 event affair, the oldest county track meet in the state.

One of the closest battles in recent years is expected as no county team has shown any exceptional strength this season.

Leetonia, runner-up to East Palestine last year (36 points to 44), has a slight edge in its favor as several of the Bears key performers from last season's squad are back.

RECORDS THAT MAY GO BY THE BOOKS are the 440-yard dash and the half-mile run. Al Kornbau of Leetonia has run the quarter mile in 52.9 seconds this season without being pressed by anyone. The present record of 51.8 seconds is held by Earl Herrington of East Palestine, who set it in 1951.

The half-mile run has been clipped in 2 minutes, 4 5-10 seconds by Chuck Nicolette of Leetonia. The present record of 2 minutes 3 5-10 seconds was set in 1933 by Keith Harris of Salem.

The Palestine Bulldogs aren't quite up to par this season but will probably be in the thick of the fight despite their lack of seasoned runners.

Other schools competing will be Columbiana, Beaver Local, United, Wellsville and East Liverpool. It is also possible that New Waterford and Fairfield may enter some track events. The only county schools definitely not entered are Lisbon and Salineville.

FOR THE 41st consecutive year Dave Williams of Youngstown will be the referee of the meet. Other officials will be George "Chalk" Gaines, and Lowell "Rib" Allen of Youngstown.

Gaines is holder of both the 100 and 220-yard dash marks, while Allen holds the pole vault record. Gaines set his two records in 1918 and 1919, running for the Columbiana Clippers.

Allen set his record of 12 feet 8 inches in 1927 while a Salem High student. These are the oldest standing records.

As an added attraction, the Mickey McGuire 440-yard relay city champion race will be on tap. Boys in the sixth grade from McKinley, Fourth Street, Prospect, Buckeye, Reilly and St. Paul schools will be entered. Each school will have four boys, with each boy running 110 yards.

The meet will start at 2 p.m. with the prelims and finals in the shot put. The prelims and finals in the discus are slated for 2:45 p.m.

THE PRELIMS in the dashes will be held between 3:30 and 4:15 p.m. with the finals scheduled to start at 7 p.m., beginning with the pole vault.

Columbiana County records are: 100 yard dash, George Gaines, Columbiana, 1919, time, 10 seconds.

Pole vault, Lowell Allen, Salem, 1928, height, 12 feet 8 inches.

Shot put, Tony Conkle, East Palestine, 1953, distance, 52 feet 9 inches.

440-yard dash, Earl Herrington, East Palestine, 1951, time, 51.8 seconds.

High jump, Jack Alexander, Salem, 1956, height 6 feet, 3 3/4 inches.

120-yard high hurdles, Glenn Young, East Palestine, 1950, time, 14.8 seconds.

220-yard dash, George Gaines, Columbiana, 1919, time, 22 seconds.

Discus throw, Jim Rambo, East Palestine, 1956, distance, 158 feet 7 inches.

Broad jump, Glenn Young, East Palestine, 1950, distance, 22 feet 4 1/4 inches.

Half-mile run, Keith Harris, Salem, 1933, time, 2 minutes 3 5-10 seconds.

180-yard low hurdles, Tony Conkle, East Palestine, 1952, time, 21.3 seconds.

Mile relay, East Liverpool, 1952, (Dan Cooper, Jerry Wines, Pete Woolley, Leo Lawrence), time, 3 minutes 37.7 seconds.

880 yard relay, Columbiana, 1937, (Duane Anglemeyer, Dick Fisher, Robert and William Entriken), time, 1 minute 32.2 seconds.

HOLDS BOWLING LEAD DAYTON, Ohio — Weidemann's of Portsmouth, Ohio, with 2,406, leads division No. 2 of the Woman's International Bowling Congress Tournament here today.

Weidemann's moved into the lead Sunday night, dropping Northfield Tap, Grand Rapids, Mich., with 2,400, into second place, Division No. 2 is limited to teams with 650-750 averages.

In the doubles event, Helen Sadowski and Irene Dickey, Chicago, rolled 1,172 Monday to take go, fifth place. Nellie Vella and Jennifer Grzelak, Rockford, Ill., lead the event with 1,218.

MINNIE BITES THE DUST — White Sox outfielder Minnie Mino grimaces as he slides into plate, trying to score from second base, in seventh inning of game with Baltimore Orioles in Chicago Wednesday. Catcher Myron Ginsberg tags him out after getting throw-in from shortstop on Larry Dobbie's single to right field. White Sox won, 9-3.

Willie Shoemaker Is Suspended 15 Days For Kentucky Derby Miscue

Score Seeks 3rd Shutout Over Yanks

CLEVELAND — Herb Score will be bidding for his third straight shutout over the New York Yankees when the Cleveland Indians meet the defending champions for the first time this season tonight. It's the opener of a two-game series.

The Tribe's ace lefthander blanked the Yankees the last two times he faced them last season and struck out 18 in 18 innings.

Score's overall record against the New Yorkers last year was 3-1. He was beaten only by righthander Tom Sturdivant, who will be his opponent tonight.

Score will be seeking his third victory of the season and Sturdivant his second. Each has lost one.

Another feature of the Indian-Yankee series will be the duel between outfielders Roger Maris of the Tribe and Tony Kubek of the Yanks. At this stage of the campaign, they are outstanding candidates for rookie-of-the-year honors.

With Score pitching, the lefthand hitting Kubek is expected to be on the bench tonight. He will be in the lineup tomorrow night against Early Wynn, Tribe righthander. Wynn's opponent is expected to be either Art Ditmar or Don Larsen.

Mickey Mantle, removed from the second game of a double header in Chicago Sunday when an old groin injury bothered him, is expected to be able to play tonight.

Whitely Ford, the Yankees' ace lefthander, will miss the series here, however. He was sent to New York Saturday for examination and treatment of a shoulder injury. Dr. Sidney Gaynor, Yankee team physician, reported Monday that Ford has a "mild muscle pull" in his pitching arm and probably will be out of action a week.

The Indians were idle Monday after losing a Sunday double header to the Boston Red Sox. They will be idle again Thursday and will end their home stand with a four-game series against the Kansas City Athletics starting Friday night. The Tribe heads East next week.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — One of the biggest miscues in racing history has cost jockey Willie Shoemaker a 15-day suspension.

Churchill Downs suspended Shoemaker Monday for "gross carelessness" in misjudging the finish line in last Saturday's 83rd running of the Kentucky Derby.

Shoemaker's mount Gallant Man finished second in a photo finish to Calumet Farm's Iron Liege.

After the race, Shoemaker said he mistook the 16th pole for the finish line and eased up on his mount.

Officials at the Downs said their authority is limited to Kentucky, but, normally, all American tracks will honor the suspension, which goes into effect tomorrow.

Shoemaker agreed the action will keep him out of the Preakness at Baltimore's Pimlico track May 18. He added he had been assigned to ride Gallant Man in that race.

Shoemaker said in Los Angeles Monday night he believed "my miscue cost Gallant Man the race, but certainly not by a length. I believe he would have won by a nose or more."

Earlier, he commented his boner was "a natural mistake. I thought the 16th pole was the finish line. That's all there was to it."

Trainer Johnny Nerud said the incident was "just something that could happen to any rider. I blame the race track, not Shoemaker. They got no business putting the finish wire down near the first turn and all those poles are the same color."

A Churchill Downs spokesman who took an opposite opinion commented: "We at Churchill Downs are of the opinion that the finish pole is the easiest of all things to distinguish at the track on Derby day."

Trainers Jim Fitzsimmons and Jimmy Jones who train Bold Ruler and Gen. Duke, respectively, both believe that about 10 horses will be in the running for the 3-year-old crown this year.

MOST IMPROVED PLAYERS
COLUMBUS, Ohio — Dick Schafath, a part-time regular on the Ohio State University football squad last year, and slated to be regular left tackle this fall, was awarded the school's "most improved player" trophy Monday as the Buckeyes climaxed spring football drills. Schafath, a 19-year-old sophomore, hails from Wooster, Ohio.

Bill Sherman of the Boston Celtics scored 55 foul shots in succession during the 1956-57 basketball season.

SITTING IT OUT THE HARD WAY — Sailing a racing dinghy has its moments of tension for Mrs. Jim Kenny, of Chichester, England. Her husband, rear, is sailing club rear commodore. Scene of this action is Chichester Harbor—and this near-horizontal pull continued for nearly 30 miles.

Schafath, a 19-year-old sophomore, hails from Wooster, Ohio.

Probe Golfer's Amateur Status

USGA To Ask Ward To Explain Charge

SAN FRANCISCO — A formal investigation into the amateur standing of two-time national golf champion Harvie Ward appeared likely today after grand jury testimony by his employer that he paid Ward's expenses to two eastern tournaments in 1954.

An official of the United States Golf Assn., which supervises amateur play, predicted the group's amateur status and conduct committee probably would ask Ward for a formal statement "very soon."

USGA rules expressly forbid accepting expenses "from any source other than one on whom the player is normally or legally dependent but excluding an employer." The USGA's northern California director, Stuart Heatley, said if Ward accepted the expenses, he "definitely breached his amateur standing."

San Francisco automobile dealer Edward E. Lowery told the grand jury that he took Ward to Ontario, Canada, where he won the 1954 Canadian Amateur Championship.

"Then," Lowery confided, "we went to Detroit to play in the U.S. amateur championship." The auto dealer said Ward was his guest as a reward for "good work as a salesman."

Lowery made the statements last month before he was indicted on charges of evading state income taxes of $43,666 December 1952-54. The testimony was made public yesterday.

Ward, a salesman for Lowery, returned to San Francisco Monday night from the Colonial Golf Tournament in Texas. He told newsmen he was not working for Lowery at the time of the 1954 trip and had merely been his "guest." Part of the trip, Ward added, was paid for by the USGA itself.

San Francisco To Bid For Major League Club

SAN FRANCISCO — San Francisco will make another bid for major league baseball Thursday when Mayor George Christopher flies to New York to meet Brooklyn Dodger President Walter O'Malley.

The mayor said his eastern trip "will be in the best interest... if we want major league baseball."

Christopher declined to speculate on a 10-team National League, a two-division league or shifting of franchise. He said O'Malley "has something in mind that is brand new."

The Dodger president has discussed West Coast baseball with financiers and major league officials since his return to New York from Los Angeles last weekend, the mayor said, adding: "He has impressed upon me that this trip is absolutely essential."

There's many a nippy morning anytime of year when it's comfortable to have the heater on in the car. The heater, I imagine, the most comforting accessory they've ever designed for cars. And the improvements over the years have made the front seat as comfortable as the front room. (Remember the old hot water heaters that looked like a radiator big enough to heat a house?)

But sometimes a heater can be dangerous, through no fault of the heater itself.

Always turn the heater off when traveling in heavy traffic. While traffic is standing still, carbon monoxide—which is invisible, odorless and mighty lethal—can enter the car through heater and air conditioning intakes from the exhaust of the cars ahead. When a car is idling, fumes can sometimes enter from your own car.

A good rule is to keep one window of the car slightly open. Sometimes you can smell gasoline, which gives a warning, but carbon monoxide itself gives no warning.

People, I've found, learn these rules of safe driving pretty fast. You seldom hear these days of a man starting his car in a closed garage. It used to be a common accident.

Some Blame Plan For 'Raids' By Other Schools

Big Ten Athletic Leaders Are Divided On Aid Program

CHICAGO (AP)—Big Ten athletic leaders found themselves divided today on whether the new financial aid to athletes program led to wholesale raiding by outside schools.

Stu Holcomb, Northwestern athletic director, blamed the plan for large scale raids in the Chicago area but received the backing of only three other schools—Jowa, Minnesota and Indiana.

The others—Illinois, Michigan, Michigan State, Wisconsin, Ohio State and Purdue—said they could see little or no difference.

The 6-4 margin is the same by which the Big Ten approved the new program last February. The plan prohibits a conference school from making a formal or valid tender of aid to an athlete until June 15. It also bases aid to athletes on proven need and financial statements from parents are required to prove such need.

Holcomb said "In time the plan will kill us. I am sure the rest of the conference has anticipated an invasion of recruiting forces from outside because of the new plan."

Holcomb listed the following schools as "very aggressively recruiting in this area":

Notre Dame, Pitt, Syracuse, Stanford, Colorado, Kansas, Kansas State, Kentucky, Nebraska and all Ivy League schools.

Frank Allen, athletic director at Indiana—one of the schools originally voting for the plan—said he expects some changes in the Western Conference program because "The Big Ten isn't going to be satisfied to be a second rate athletic league."

Minnesota and Iowa both backed Holcomb and said they felt the heavier recruiting in their area but others didn't go along.

Ray Eddy, basketball coach at Purdue, said the effect of non-

Big Ten recruiting aids could not be determined until after mid-June. "I believe we've had more high school senior athletes visiting our campus than ever before," he added.

Illinois Athletic Director Doug Mills said "I don't see any difference. All of these schools mentioned (by Holcomb) have always recruited heavily in the Northern Illinois area."

"As to the question of losing prospective athletes," Mills continued, "that's something we will not know until June 15. I see no reason for crying now."

Michigan State and Wisconsin could see no change while Michigan strongly favored the new plan.

"Before the new aid program went into effect, we were outbid by both outside and Big Ten schools," said Bob Holloway, assistant football coach. "We like the new method because every school has an even chance as long as it is enforced."

Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes said raiding reports are "grossly exaggerated. Sure, the grant in aid plan has led to raiding in a small degree but raiding has been going on for 50 years and will continue to go on. But any idea that it's going to hurt the Big Ten is ridiculous."

Church Youth Visit Orphans, Aged Home

COLUMBIANA — Members of the youth department of Grace Evangelical and Reformed Church made their annual field trip Sunday afternoon to the denominational St. Paul's Home for the Aged and Home for Orphans at Greenville, Pa.

They took with them treats for the residents of both homes. Visiting first the home for orphans, they had supper there, and then conducted a vespers service at the home for the aged, where a new addition to the home was inspected.

Opposes State Lake In Stark County

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A township trustee appeared before the Ohio House Conservation Committee Monday night to oppose an $825,000 state lake in his home township—Paris Twp. of Stark County.

Arthur Mong, the Paris Twp. trustee, headed a group of Stark County residents opposing the fishing and water-supply lake near Paris. The bill proposing construction of the lake is sponsored by Reps. John Lehman (R-Stark) and Robert Longworth (R-Carroll).

Mong offered these reasons — in essence—for opposing the lake:

1. It wouldn't hold water because sand and gravel underlie the site.
2. The creek which would feed it dries up in the summer and it would take five years to fill the proposed reservoir.
3. Present state lakes—Zeppernick and Guilford—provide enough fishing for the area now.
4. The village of Minerva, if it wants to attract industry with a bountiful water supply, can dam up Little and Big Sandy rivers.
5. The State Department of Natural Resources has made no real study of the proposed Paris Twp. lake project and a big state appropriation without such a study "would be a piece of folly."

Estranged Husband Slays Wife; Kills Self

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Mrs. Jean Watson, 18, mother of three, was shot and killed early today by her estranged husband Ronnie, 20, who, police said, then killed himself with a 16-gauge shotgun.

Authorities said the shooting occurred in the vicinity of the woman's home here. They recounted the events this way:

Mrs. Watson, who had been separated from her husband six to nine months, was sitting in a car in front of her home with Calvin Ferguson, 20, of Columbus. Watson walked up to the car and demanded that she get out.

He changed his mind and told Mrs. Watson to remain seated, shooting her in the head as she sat in the car's front seat. Ferguson was not injured.

Police said Watson then ran into a nearby alley and shot himself in the right temple.

Mrs. Watson had been living with her father, Walter Hendricks, during the separation, authorities said. Watson was also living in Columbus. The couple had been married four years, police said.

Looks After Girl Riding With Other Man

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Donald M. Schafer, 18, faced a speeding charge in Dayton Municipal Court Monday, accused of driving 65 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone.

Asked why the excessive speed by Judge Cecil E. Edwards, Schafer replied:

"Because my girl friend's mother told me to look after her."

"You couldn't be looking after her going 65 miles an hour with her in the car," said the judge.

"Oh, she wasn't in my car," said Schafer. "She was in a car in front of me with another man."

Judge Edwards fined him $10 and costs and revoked his driving license for 30 days.

Salineville Motorist Sued For $100,000

LISBON — A suit for $100,000 for personal injuries allegedly sustained in an auto accident was filed in Common Pleas Court Monday by Ellen Householder of East Liverpool.

Leslie Griffith of Salineville was named defendant.

The plaintiff claims she suffered a back injury Sept. 26, 1956 when an auto driven by Blanche Scott, in which she was a passenger, was struck from the rear by the defendant's auto.

The mishap occurred on West Virginia Rt. 2, near the Steubenville Bridge, the petition claims.

GRAZING CONDITIONS CHANGE BY RAIN — In January, just before President Eisenhower's trip to the drought area near San Angelo, Tex., sheep were feeding on roots of plowed-up Johnson grass (top) as pasture lands were parched and dried up. Rains over the past few weeks have changed the picture completely and now the sheep have plenty of grazing land. (bottom).
